Do you have any PCI cards installed?

sounds like a funny question I know.

there is a voltage leak somewhere in the A1 design

Seems certain PCI cards drain the clock battery when the AMIGA IS TURNED OFF.

I have seen certain Cmedia sounds cards kill the battery in no time.

I suggest you write to Kurt if interested, since he is the only one I am aware of who has posted this info.

Additionally, we have more threads than I can count on battery issues. Here are some of the relevant ones being discussed in this thread:

"My A1 is dead. Heeeeeeeeeellllllllllp!!!!"

2005, but contains some of the posts on the badly soldered battery holder on the XEs. Interesting to note the tremendous difference in battery life time reported by users.

"Weak battery symptoms"

2005 again, but still relevant.

"A1 boots with disk activity, but no screen. (This thing takes batteries)"

2006, proving the issues still exist. Your posts in this thread also indicate that.
