Incidentally, you're not the only one with this problem. One of the other affected groups is using WePay, which I had never even heard of.

I'd personally prefer to stick with PayPal because it allows me to donate/pay without entering my Credit Card number and provides me with more control (e.g., a company can automatically charge my Credit Card without my explicit approval, but with PayPal I have to approve the request before it goes through), but if they take too long, then it's worth looking at other options. PayPal might hurry up if you tell them that you are going to shut down your account and go to one of their competitors.
