I'm working on it...

Status now is (as stated before), that I am able to disassemble and reassemble the thing, and it seems to work identically (I tested it on my A1200).

At the moment I am trying to track down interpretable pieces of code (eg. system function calls) and structures. It is still at the very early stage, but I think I will have a firm grip on the situation soon.

If someone wants to help, I can email "sources".
