@Hans

you're a great man with little time! :)

However, I talked about avcodec because I thought to use that to decode the videos to edit...

For the encode why don't simply make a raw (or something standard) and then use ffmpeg to encode it?

Since we don't have a decent video editor, I think that the first thing we need was a decent one that can simply save in standard...for the encoders we have much time and using ffmpeg (or mencoder) was a rather useful and easy way meantime imho...

no?
