The Amiga-way-of-programming(sadly) wasnt here from a while since now...

And having a littel tool that works fine with the only limitation that outputting raw instead of your preferred codec I think was really much than "better than nothing" imho...

And also better to have something like it "now" and than work on things like output decoders than first work on all the needed dependencies and than build the program imho...

And yes.. Blender was way slow...
