Diego allready worked on it, with the Cbasa source.

Good to hear. Diego is obviously 10 steps ahead of the rest of us.

Diego will take the bounty (In fact, I have myself wrote a bounty description about avcodec.library, months ago).

I did a search before adding my bounty suggestion, but I completely missed your one.

We hope that Update3 will help to give allways the exact output error when development problem came (no more the feeze only case).

Redirecting debug output to serial and using a null-modem cable is usually the best tool when it comes to stuff that locks up the machine.
