Progress:

Apparently most of the system specific stuff has been located in plugins, and so I can pretty much build anything I like in the whole package, but of course I can't run anything, because I haven't done the amiga specific plugins. Everything seems nicely located, but I bet there are some caveats comming up. Should be possible to do before Christmas, though (fingers crossed, not forgetting to never promise anything before the bear has been located, shot, cut into pieces and eaten...).
