one more question regarding compatibility, i know there are issues regarding different cpu with some games, but is warp3d HD 100% compatible with existing software if you have compatible cpu that the software require?

Not quite 100%. There are one or two obscure features that aren't implemented (e.g., chroma test, which has rarely been used). There are also a few old programs that demand a big-endian 16-bit screenmode, which Southern Islands cards don't support, but that isn't a Warp3D issue.

The vast majority of Warp3D software should work, especially if it uses MiniGL.
